Large School Unit Approved

By G. Fred McNally

Annual per pupil cost of education in Alberta has been reduced since establishment of the larger school unit system, it was announced by Dr. G. Fred McNally, Deputy Minister of Education, this week. During the department is well satisfied with results he added that "in the main, the advantages far outweigh the disadvantages. The divisional system has increased very greatly the opportunities of rural children. At the same time it has given the people of the province a larger return on their educational dollar." He believed that over a period of years the average rate of taxation will be approximately the same, he

Colored Gasoline

Denying the new method of coloring gasoline for farm use to do away with the cumbersome coupon system of tax refunds would impose hardships, R. C. Manning said this week that the new method has to be abandoned. It will mean a return to the former method by which a farmer paid a price for fuel oil and then applied for a refund. The colored oil system went into effect with the new year.

One Day It's Snowing

and the next it's like a spring. One day, there's a nip in the air, the bite in the wind; and we are bringing our sleighs, skis and snowshoes. The next day, a blizzard is upon us, and we are huddled under the warm blanket of snow. It is like a roller coaster ride, and we are all in for it. The weather is so unpredictable, and we are all in for it. The weather is so unpredictable, and we are all in for it.

To The Immortal Memory

The memory of Scotland's best loved poet, Robert Burns, will be commemorated this week and next, in song, story, banquet, dance and reminiscence, throughout Canada, to say nothing of the land of his birth.

It is the great, human, kindly sympathetic heart of the man that endeared him to so many down through the ages. For example the plaintive pleading for the wee bit mither, "Wee, sleekit, cum, tinsome beastie, Oh what a pain's in this breastie!"

SIX MILLION TROUSERS

For Britain's Army in the Spring

Enough cloth to stretch from York shire to New York, back to Yorkshire, and out to New York again, is being woven for Britain's army in the spring.

It will be made into 5,000,000 pairs of trousers. More trousers are needed because they wear out more quickly. Already the tailoring trade of Great Britain has turned out 12,000,000 blouses and 11,500,000 trousers, but the new effort is the largest single order since the war began, and it is only an indication of what will be eventually required.

Some 10,000 people are now employed in preparing, spinning, and weaving the 16,000,000 yards of serge alone. At almost the same length of lining will also be needed by the 450 clothing contractors in England, Wales, Scotland, and Northern Ireland who are turning the material into complete battle dress.

While these contracts, and a further order for 1,500,000 more Army greatcoats in the heavy cloth specially produced in Yorkshire, do put a certain strain upon the heavy sections of the woolen trade, there remains ample plant and personnel for the more usual cloths in demand overseas.

The contracts represent only six per cent of Britain's output of woollens and the normal needs at home are now strictly controlled. A constant supply of raw wool continues to reach Britain and, as for exports, a cross-section inquiry of the industry has made very marked advances during 1940. Eighteen cheese factories located at various parts from Mountain View in the South to Crooked Creek in the Peace River section, manufactured 2,700,000 pounds. This figure represents the highest production in the history of the province, and is an increase of 35 per cent over the 1939 production.

If there were dreams to sell
What would you buy?
Some cost a passing bell:
Some a light sigh.
That shales from Life's fresh crown
A rose leaf down.
If there were dreams to sell,
Merry and sad to tell,
And the crier rang the bell,
What would you buy?
A cottage lone and still,
With bowers high,
Shady, my woes to still,
Until I die.
Such pearl from Life's fresh crown
Fain would I shake me down
Were dreams to have at will,
This would best heal my ill.
This would I buy

The Carseland P. B. Club,
Dear Friends:—What a pleasant surprise I received one day, when I was informed that there was a parcel for me in the orderly room, from Canada.

Everyone gathered around like children at a Christmas tree to see what was in it, and of course everyone telling me what a good chap I was, etc., hoping by doing so they would have a taste of the contents of the said parcel. Well I might add it was a great pleasure to myself to open it and find all the good things inside, everything was fine, the cake from Mrs. Ostrom was very good, also the cookies, I would like very much to drop everyone a line including the packer of the parcel, Mrs. Ostrom, but we are so busy over here that we do not have much time to do a lot of writing, so please forgive me, let this short letter be one for all.

Before I draw to a close I wish to thank everyone for sending such a good parcel, it has been enjoyed very much by the boys and I. Our thoughts often turn to home these trying days, but let us hope and I'm sure we will see better days ahead in the near future.

So cheerio for now, and once again thanks. I am as ever, Noel Barlow.

The Carseland P. B. Club,
Dear Friends:—Thanks a million for the lovely parcel that the Club and other friends sent. I received it today, just before dinner, and boy did it top off the meal in grand style. Every thing I received was just what I needed. I had travelled about 1000 miles. Orchids to you, Mrs. Cool, you did a wonderful job. Give with everything that was in it, was something that we either can't get over here or really liked at home. First time I've seen postcard butter since I left home and the salted peanuts that we get here are green and tough. It is even getting difficult to buy candies or chocolate bars here. These days candies are 'but won't be for long' great. I've got the box on the table beside me now and spare one in between sentences and other fellows' fingers. Good old Glendene Carmichael! Buttery! Did you ever use margarine? If you did, you'll know how we appreciate good Canadian butter. We're so glad to have a grand feed in my room tonight, just before lights out (10.15). One of the boys got some chocolate and sugar. So with all the good things we have received; along with some bread borrowed from the kitchen; we'll really have a grand feed. Sure wish all you folks could see how we really enjoy and appreciate the boxes you send to us.

We've moved into our winter quarters and they are great after about two months in tents. The air is so damp here we couldn't sleep. Warm and our blankets always seemed to be damp. The old house we're in is supposed to be over 200 years old and believe that's right. There are a lot of many stairways and doors in one house before there are 22 rooms. There is three of us in our room (N.C.O.'s are privileged and have single rooms). I wrote that last sentence I've had the living daylight's scared out of me. The old son-of-a-gun just let six eggs drop and none of them were over 250 yards from us. Didn't hurt any of our gang but it is too soon after, 9 or 10 minutes to know if there were any one unharmed. It's a bright moonlight night with a ground fog. He couldn't see, so just let them ramble anywhere. That is the first time he's bothered us for a week. Was hoping he had forgotten where we were.

Well, to carry over our happy home or is it? We've got single beds with springs and I borrowed a mattress, so what more do we need or want. We fixed up the lights, moved in; so we could be worse off. We've got a 100 watt light, a gas radiant and just not to mention, we bought a radio. Boy do I wish I was home. We will be one of these days—I hope.

We manage to keep quite busy at our mechanical work, so the time goes very quickly. Being a technical unit we do not do parade ground drill, for which I am very thankful. We're all mechanics, machinists, electricians, welders, blacksmiths or opticians.

Well I guess this is enough about myself and what we do in our spare time. Kind of dry reading I imagine for you folks at home. Cheer up we've got the war won already and will be home for Christmas. (I didn't say that).

Remember me to all the folks around Carseland and district and thanks a million again for the box.

Yours very sincerely, Lionel.

Under The Street Lamp

by P. E. (Pat) O'Mooley

Stanley Besse was by the side of the road bawling loudly. A passer-by asked him what was the matter. "My ma, she's gone and down-drownd-drown-drown the kitchen," he wailed.

"Oh, isn't that too bad," Stanley bawled the louder. "Yes, an' ma, she promised me that I could down them."

...Any fool can go to bed—but it takes a man to get up.

Billy Woodliffe was relating a fishing story to some of his friends. "Yes," he said proudly, "I caught the biggest fish of my career last week. It was a bass, and it weighed seven pounds and two ounces."

Joyce, who had remained interested throughout the story, now spoke up. "Yes, and daddy was so kind. He gave it to my little kitten."

Fred Holmes says: "Give your husband enough rope and he'll start getting tied up at the office evenings."

Mrs. McFarland: "You were a long time sitting in the parlor with that young man last night, Eileen. What was going on?" Eileen: "Did you ever sit in the parlor with father before you married him?" Mrs. McF.: "I suppose I did." Eileen: "Well, mother, it's the same old world."

Dr. John: "An intelligent girl is one who can refuse a kiss, and not be deprived of it."

"Why are the chickens making such a noise, mama?" asked Jack Ridson. "They want their breakfast." "Well, if they're so hungry, why don't they lay themselves an egg?"

Lolly says that if he is in doubt as to whether to kiss a pretty girl, he always gives her the benefit of the doubt.

The Queen of Hearts, she made some tarts, All on a summer day. The Knave of Hearts, he stole those tarts, And he got indigestion.

BETTER ENGLAND AND WORLD MUST RISE FROM THE ASHES OF CONFLICT

In an article reprinted by the Calgary Herald from the Toronto Saturday Night, we quote the following paragraphs:

They are strong statements of a condition that cannot exist in a democracy where justice and humanitarian consideration for every one, in all walks of life should prevail.

The war will not have been fought in vain, if not only in England, but throughout the world in general, shall arise, from the ashes of conflict, that will give to all men an equitable distribution of necessities, and cultural benefits.

"Pre-war England was overladen with too many 'classes'; the rich, the wealthy, the well-to-do, the upper middle-class, the lower middle class, while below these swarmed the lower class in their millions, conducting a ceaseless campaign for the mere necessities of life, often involving the brink of destitution. It is a population in Britain of some forty-five millions, thirty-eight millions could always be classified as the lower class, and perhaps some vivid appreciation of what this classification really meant in the struggle for existence can be conveyed by stating the simple truth that one week's loss of employment meant for any family the very verge of want and even destitution."

That such a state of things could prevail in the richest Empire mankind has ever known is in itself conclusive proof of the barren statesmanship which tolerated it.

Social distinctions had become abnormally emphasized, and he struggle for existence, for the masses, had developed into a racket, in which the highest "honors" went to the highest bidder.

Besides an economic system misused and directed to the purpose of human well-being, I long ago to see an England released from the economic system that has existed for centuries specifically to serve the needs, often superficial, of a small exclusive "upper" class.

This system should be swept away and replaced by educational services altogether more democratic and calculated to fashion outposts for the workable business of the nation.

serving the nation of which they are citizens. I trust that when peace comes the "Oxford Voice" that is alarming, dismal, abnormal conception that comes up from Riton, Harrow, and a few other public schools will fade away forever like some unpleasant echo dying in the night.

That this dissolution of age-long human barriers is already in full process in Britain cannot be in doubt, for now in the indiscriminate baptism of fire in which all of the British people are engulfed, there emerges a final display of unity that has no parallel in her long history; a unity which precludes a coming common greatness such as Britain has never known in her two thousand years.

PROBLEM OF WHEAT POLICY
CONFRONTS GOVERNMENT

As the time draws near for a decision on wheat policy for 1941-42, it is only too evident that the Dominion government is confronted with a problem of extreme complexity, says a review released by the Pioneer Grain Company, Limited. Indeed, it has been said, with a great deal of truth, that wheat is the most urgent issue before the government apart from the war effort.

What makes it so difficult to handle is the simple fact that the only satisfactory solution to Canada's wheat problem is the restoration of export markets on a scale sufficient to absorb the normal surplus. It is the belief of many competent authorities that world trade will revive at the conclusion of a victorious peace, bringing about this restoration of markets for Canadian wheat. But until victory is achieved, or at least until continental Europe is freed from enemy domination, some sort of temporary adjustment must be made.

— TRUE LOVE —

Love is a theme that will never die.

Tu agonies and always new;

Tu sung by a lad to his sweetheart
in words that are tender and true;

This sung by a mother in soft lullaby
As over her baby she doth bend;

But, sweetest of all, by a man to his mate

When nearing the journey's end
True love's a melody,

True love's a symphony,
True love is ecstasy

All of our dreams come true.
